
Title: The breaking of a Blood bond

Author: jordan told to S. M.

This story tis shown as tis spoken by the Lady Jordan, any
items of truth that might be brought up
towards it should be brought up to her.
That said, let us
continue.

During one fateful
evening, Jordan was summoned by Niamh
to a home for which
she did not know.
From hence there, a
vortex did take her to a large dark chamber
in some location that she could not devine.
Twas brought to her
knowledge that she sat
within the Star
chamber, that room at the heart of the Terrethian Keep. All
others present left,
and she was left
alone... or so she thought. From hence
within the darkness Allegra strode forth,
her and Jordan moving to a throne. She taking seat in the throne and Jordan occupying a
bench, the two
embraced and looked deep within one and another. Twas then
that Allegra posed her
the question of wether
or not thus was her desire, Jordan's answer a yes. Again
she asked, and again
the same answer
insued, allthough in a bit of a tremble.

Allegra proceeded to
discord of the great
cost in honor and
prestige such an act
would lay upon her, as well the fact that Jordan was to obey all of the Giovanni clan
hence without question. Further
she was instructed
that she was hence
forbidden to sire a childe. Grudgingly,
she complied, and the
process was begun.
The two stared into each others eyes, a moment Jordan will never forget... when Allegra slashed one of her wrists and ordered Jordan to
drink the fluid.
Unbenowest to Jordan,
the blood had been
preveously prepared
through meditation.
Jordan drained the
vitae from her to a state of weakness, but to no avail as this more elder vampire
informed Jordan that
the process had not cleansed her. Fear
crept into the back of her mind at such news, but was interupted by the arrival of Diana and Roland. Allegra now
having her wound
rappidly healed,
Jordan kneeled before
her and she said that only one more attempt could be made. Jordan
expressed her
concern with this, but
the other wrist was presented and she went to it, drawn, and began to drain the blood from Allegra
once again. Had Roland not forced her

back, she might have
drained her
completely. But, as it
tis, she had not, but brought her close.
The deed was done,
Jordan had been
cleansed of the blood of Cedric and thusly in the process become
bonded to Allegra.